Partner Bio

Joan Krevlin has been involved in all aspects of project design and management since becoming a partner at BKSK Architects in 1992. Through her work as the partner- in-charge of a number of highly successful projects for New York City's Department of Design & Construction, including the Queens Botanical Garden and the New York Hall of Science, Joan has become one of the City's foremost experts in the creation of iconic public spaces. She is currently the partner- in-charge of the expansion and renovation of the NYC Department of Parks & Recreation's headquarters at Olmsted Center. She currently serves on the Board of Trustees for the Bronx Museum of Art, and has been closely involved with other NYC cultural and service institutions, including the
